Delay in Mail
Hits Star Comics

Roy Anderson received a letter with the following enclosure, author unknown:

"Indian Prayer:
"Dear Lord, help me not to criticize my neighbor until I have walked a mile in his moccasins."

There being no complaints recently on delay of The Star in reaching its county subscribers we presume the second class mail service is improving—but now we are having trouble ourselves with delays or complete failure in delivery of the newspaper's incoming mail.

Twice in the last two weeks we have had to telephone national syndicate headquarters for replacement by air mail of cartoons either delayed or lost in transit from the East.

First it was a missing week's supply of the WINTHROP strip. We telephoned Newspaper Enterprise Association, 1200 W. Third St., Cleveland, Ohio 44113, and got the replacement by air mail just in time to avert a hole in the comic page.

Wednesday we were short the FLASH GORDON strip for next week, and had to telephone King Features Syndicate, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017 for replacement by air mail.

The Postal Service might claim the trouble lay in the mailing rooms of the syndicates, but we doubt it. Newspaper Enterprise is owned by Scripps-Howard, and King Features by the Hearst Corporation—two of the largest and most experienced newspaper outfits in America.

Father pleas for man

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A father whose young son was killed in a traffic accident pleaded with a judge not to send a truck driver to jail because "he can't help my son from there. The boy is dead, there is nothing more we can do."

Truck driver Willie Reath, 41, whose own son was killed by a hit-and-run driver two years ago, sobbed Wednesday as William F. Williams added:

"I don't hold any vindictive motive or anything against him because, after all, he has to live with it the same as I do."

Reath was charged with leaving the scene of an accident June 9 after his pickup truck collided with a bicycle ridden by 13-year-old Robert Williams.

Police said Reath returned to the scene within 10 minutes, appearing dazed, and said he had been unable to stop in heavy traffic.

The father told Criminal Court Judge Alfonso C. Sepe that he called Reath the night of the accident, moments after identifying his son's body, and told him not to feel bad ".... accidents are accidents and sometimes you can't prevent them."

He said Reath replied: "No sir. I got a son that got killed the same way, but the driver didn't stop. He kept going. This is something you can't get off your mind. I am truly sorry about it."

After listening to Williams' plea Sepe placed Reath, the father of eight children, on probation and sent him home.

The judge called Williams "the soul of America."

"You have a white man coming before the court, telling you to release the black man that killed his child accidentally," defense lawyer Paul Pollack told the judge.

Cease-fire offer
by U.S. rejected
by North Vietnam

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam rejected today a renewed urgent American appeal for an immediate cease-fire in Vietnam.

Hanoi's chief negotiator told the 152nd session of the Vietnam peace conference that a cease-fire can take place "after agreement on all the military and political questions."

Xuan Thuy scoffed at President Nixon's May 8 plan, which included a call for a cease-fire, saying it contains "nothing new and constructive."

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter had urged acceptance of the cease-fire, saying: "There seems to be no more compelling task for us than that of ending the killing and doing so as soon as we can. Cease-fire is the key."

Porter said an end to the shooting would enhance the prospects for political negotiation.

But Thuy said that if the United States really wants to negotiate seriously it should "put an immediate end to the mining and blockade of North Vietnamese ports, to its bombing raids—particularly to those against dikes and dams ... It should stop all its acts of genocidal war in South Vietnam."

The Communist side clung to the seven-point plan of the Viet Cong's revolutionary government, which calls for the United States to set a date for total and unconditional withdrawal of its forces and the replacement of the Saigon regime of Nguyen Van Thieu by a coalition government.

Porter also asked today "why arrangements cannot be planned now for the time when our men will return to their country?"

He told the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong: "It is difficult to see how that and the exchange of prisoners could in any way damage the interests of North and South Vietnam. We favor such a cease-fire. We urge it because it would allow constructive political discussions to take place among Vietnamese, free of the dangers of combat."

Citadel

SAIGON (AP) — Badly mauled South Vietnamese paratroopers retreated from the Quang Tri Citadel carrying their dead and wounded in rubber ponchos slung from poles, giving up the bloody fight for the 19th century fortress, field informants reported today.

"They were taking 150 casualties a day and it just wasn't worth hanging in there," one U.S. adviser told Associated Press correspondent Dennis Need in Quang Tri.

Assassins
slay two in Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Assassins killed two more men in Belfast during the night, and the Irish Republican Army hit back at British troops who have invaded their strongholds.

The militant Protestant Ulster Defense Association said it would throw up a blockade today to stop all fuel oil deliveries to Londonderry's Bogside and Creggan districts, hoping to force the Catholic families to move out of the IRA strongholds.

Bumpers pledges fight to secure Amtrak for state

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers said a "massive effort" would be launched today to try to get Arkansas included in the Amtrak national rail passenger system.

The governor made the remark Wednesday night while taping Challenge '72, a Jaycees program that will be shown Sunday over KARK-TV, Little Rock.

Bumpers said he would write today to all chambers of commerce in Arkansas and would write to the governor of Texas and ask him to do the same in Texas in an effort to get an Amtrak route through Arkansas and Texas.

said. "I think we've been discriminated against."

The governor said he thought Amtrak was here to stay.

Daniel Roebuck, director of the state Industrial Development Department, said Tuesday the chance of success may be better if Arkansas joined with officials at Dallas, Tex., who have begun a drive to bring Amtrak service to that city.

The Dallas officials have been urging a new route from St. Louis through Little Rock to Dallas. There is an Amtrak terminal at Fort Worth.

The possibility of a route through Arkansas has been raised with the allocation by Congress of $2 million for Amtrak to restore passenger service to Mexico, entering through Nuevo Laredo, and for service from the United States to Montreal and Vancouver, Canada.

Bumpers said he thought St. Louis was the logical point of origin for the Amtrak route to Mexico.

"We are going to talk to all members of the congressional delegation and make a massive effort, massive push to have the Department of Transportation include this line from St. Louis through Little Rock to Laredo," Bumpers said. "Mass transit is the thing of the future in this country and I think this is a golden opportunity for us to get Amtrak through Arkansas."

Reinhardt is named to city board

The City Board of Directors, at its regular meeting Tuesday, appointed Bill Reinhardt to the board. Reinhardt will serve out the term of Jim Lockhart, who resigned for "business reasons and other commitments" recently.

The election for the position will be held along with positions held by Mayor Sam Strong and Floyd Young in the general election in November.

Reinhardt, a Hope resident for 18 years, is an employee at the Citizen's National Bank. He was formerly with the Farmers Home Administration.

A public hearing was held on the application by J. B. Ingram and James Gaines for a new franchise to operate a taxi company. Action will be taken at the next regular meeting to be held on August 8th.

Several proposed locations for a Community Center for Hope were discussed, and a final location will be selected at a later date. The application to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development will have to contain the information about the location as it will be part of the cost.

The proposed Community Center will contain approximately 10,000 square feet, and including parking area, will cover at least half a block. The entire cost is estimated to be about $250,000, of which the city will pay 25 per cent. Part of the city's share can be paid by work the city can provide.

The board agreed to support County Judge Finis Odom in trying to secure the state Highway Department's office and other facilities on Highway 67 east when the department moves to their new location on State Highway 29 and I-30.

The board agreed last year to pay Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company for relocating their gas lines on South Main St. They have now completed the work and the board authorized payment to be made, subject to the Highway Department's accepting the work that has been prepared.

The board also agreed to furnish the same help to a group of citizens trying to form a Sewer Improvement District on the west side of town that they have to other groups in the past. This district will be in an area north of Avenue B and West of Pritchard St. Some preliminary work was done by the city engineers several years ago, but a more detailed study will have to be made.

This district will serve approximately 90 residences.

Answer to district suit filed

The Hope Municipal District No. 5, through its attorney James Pilkinton, yesterday filed an answer to a suit filed against the district last week, requesting that the suit be dismissed.

Seven residents of the district filed the suit in Chancery Court here charging that the Board of Assessors failed to assess the realty in a "fair, impartial, equitable and legal manner."

The district includes a section of State Highway 29 north of the city limits past the I-30 section. Through its answer, the district denies the following major charges brought by the suit: 1) that the Board of Commissioners of the district did not furnish the board with plans for and estimates of the cost of the improvements; 2) that the board was illegally appointed; 3) that the board failed to assess the realty in a fair, impartial, equitable and legal manner; 4) that the board failed to take into consideration benefits to property owners adjoining the locality to be affected; 5) that the facilities and operation of the district will exceed in cost 80 per cent of the value of each parcel of realty within the district; 6) that the proposed assessments are grossly excessive; 7) that the sewer improvement will in no way benefit a great percentage of the property; 8) that by virtue of owning lands adjoining the district, the members of the board will benefit from their assessments; 9) that the assessments should be declared null and void; 10) that a new board should be appointed.

Eagleton to withdraw if nation's voters get 'edgy'

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton says he will withdraw from the Democratic ticket voluntarily if he gets a gut feeling that voters are edgy about him because of his past medical problems.

"If my visceral feeling is that my candidacy is untenable," the Democratic vice presidential nominee said Wednesday, "I won't wait for George McGovern. I'll get off myself."

Eagleton revealed Tuesday that he had been hospitalized for "nervous exhaustion and fatigue" in 1960, 1964 and 1966.

He offered then to withdraw from the ticket, but Democratic presidential nominee McGovern kept him on, refusing to even discuss a resignation.

After flying here from Los Angeles, Eagleton said for the first time that he might not wait for McGovern to take him up on his standing offer.

"It's hard to qualify what it would take for me to have that visceral feeling in my stomach," he said. "A part of politics is subjective, having a feel about a situation."

He said he would be able to detect if "I'm making people nervous or edgy" or "if people are troubled by my presence on the ticket."

If he does withdraw, the Missouri senator said, "I wouldn't be happy about it, but I'd understand. I'm a very pragmatic person." His replacement on the ticket would be selected by the Democratic National Committee if he should decide to step aside.

However, he talked of the presidential campaign with confidence. "I have a visceral feeling that we're going to win this election," he said.

Several hundred persons warmly greeted him at Honolulu International Airport. Many held hand-lettered placards reading "Vice President Eagleton."

Eagleton, designated by Sen. McGovern as his chief campaign ambassador to organized labor, was expected to leave here with endorsement of the Democratic ticket by the 600,000-member Retail Clerks International Association, fifth largest union in the AFL-CIO.

The union is holding its annual convention here, and Eagleton had prepared a speech appealing for support of the union. But a high union official predicted the 1,100 delegates would beat Eagleton to the punch by voting to endorse the Democratic ticket before Eagleton delivered his speech.

Objects thrown at cars on Interstate

Hempstead County Sheriff Henry Sinyard announced today that a crack-down on persons reportedly throwing objects off bridges spanning Interstate-30 near Hope is underway.

Sinyard told the Star that several complaints about rocks and other objects being hurled at passing vehicles from the bridges had been reported.

"Due to the dangerous conditions which could be caused by persons throwing objects at passing cars," he said, "we will do everything in our power to catch those involved and prosecute to the fullest extent of the law."

Joe Purcell wants to play 'different role'

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Joe Purcell, anxious "to play a different role" in the Democratic party, said Wednesday he would not serve another term as chairman of the state Democratic party.

The 46-year-old former attorney general is expected to run for governor or the U. S. Senate in 1974.

Purcell said in an interview that he had been "red-shirted politically these last two years." He said he wanted to get "the red shirt off. I want to get back to spring practice."

Purcell, who has been chairman since September 1970, said he was not withdrawing from the party apparatus because of any discontent.

"You know, of course, that this is the first time in 16 years that I was not a candidate for public office," he said. "As chairman, I felt like I ought to be nonpartisan in party affairs, that it was my duty and responsibility to take that attitude."

"You also know me well enough to know that when I believe in something, I want to take a stand on it, to speak out on it," he said. "I complied with my duty not to interfere in the primaries when I was chairman, but, frankly, I was not accustomed to that. It put me in political chains I don't feel comfortable in."

Gov. Dale Bumpers, who tabbed Purcell for the chairmanship after winning the 1970 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said Wednesday night he was surprised on hearing Purcell would be leaving, and that Purcell had not contacted him before hand. Bumpers said the announcement caught him "off-guard." Bumpers said he did not have anyone in mind as a successor.

Purcell would not discuss specific political aspirations, but he said he was keeping his options open. He also remarked, "I have confidence in myself that I can represent the people of my state efficiently, effectively and be responsive to the needs of the people in either a federal or state office. I know the people of this state, I've traveled into every section, and I know their aspirations and hopes for the future. I know we have the potential to realize their dreams and fondest expectations."

Purcell said he would continue his law practice at Benton while moving into a more active individual role in party affairs.

Purcell, who was paid nothing as chairman, said when he became chairman the Democratic State Committee was broke.

Purcell's predecessor, Charles Matthews of North Little Rock, had attempted to increase financial support for the party's obligations and, employing four field men, had attempted to enlarge the party apparatus and activities.

The party borrowed $4,000 to continue operations, and, in December 1970, each of the 110 state committee members pledged $100 to aid the party financially. Enough of them kept the pledge to produce about $6,000.

In January 1971, the Democratic Victory Ball netted about $11,000. The loan was repaid and, as of Wednesday, the party had $6,449.53 in a checking account and $20,000 in savings.

"We have run the party the last two years on a shoestring," Purcell said. "We have only one paid employee. I tried to handle the party funds the way I handled public funds."

As attorney general for two terms, Purcell returned an average of 18 per cent of the money appropriated for his office by the legislature. "I don't fill a position unless it needs to be filled," he said.

Purcell said he kept expenses low by accepting compensation from the party only for party business that required him to go out of state, shouldering in-state expenses himself even when he was on party business.

Purcell's political career began with two terms as Benton city attorney, then he was elected to two terms as Municipal Court judge at Benton, then he won the attorney general's job.

During his term as attorney general, Purcell introduced consumer protection to the office, oversaw the recodification of the state's election laws, and, as he subsequently acknowledged, laid the groundwork for advancement to higher office.

"My record was not to try to go to the top the first time out," Purcell said. "I tried to train myself, by stepping up. I always felt like that unless I could do a good job in a lesser office, I didn't feel like I had a right to expect the people to elect me to a higher office."

Demand review suspends 'Papers' trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pentagon Papers trial was temporarily suspended today as three appeals court judges reviewed a defense demand to see wiretap information the government has on a member of the defense team.

The 9th Circuit Court of Appeals judges took the matter under submission after hearing 1½ hours of legal arguments at an emergency session Wednesday afternoon. Last-minute efforts by lawyers for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo won a stay of the trial less than three hours before opening arguments were due to begin.

Defense lawyers Leonard Weinglass and former Sen. Charles Goodell had worked with other defense team members through the night on a petition for stay.

After an informal hearing in a small hotel conference room, U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas joined the circuit's Chief Judge Walter Ely and Circuit Judge James Browning in signing an order for stay of "further proceedings" in the trial. They said they would allow time for the circuit to review U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne's ruling concerning wiretaps.

Ellsberg, 41, and Russo, 35, both former Rand Corp. researchers on government projects, are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak to news media of the Pentagon Papers, top secret documents detailing origins of the Vietnam war.

Byrne, informed that a stay had been granted, dismissed jurors tentatively until Monday, though he warned that they might be summoned earlier if the case can proceed.

Within 3½ hours after the stay, three appeals judges—Charles Merrill of San Francisco, Ozell M. Trask of Phoenix, Ariz., and M. Oliver Koelsch of San Francisco—were at the courthouse hearing the legal arguments.

The wiretap controversy erupted Monday when Byrne surprised the defense by announcing from the bench that the government had filed an in-chambers transcript of a wiretap involving either a defense lawyer or a defense consultant.

After vigorous defense demands to see the data, Byrne ruled Tuesday that the information was not relevant to the trial and did not have to be revealed to the defense.

be dismissed in its entirety for want of equity."

The answer also stated that the "plaintiffs failed, neglected and refused to appeal any dissatisfaction which they might have had with the work of the assessors to the City Board of Directors within the 10-day period provided by law after the publication of the statutory notice on June 1, 1972...that in the absence of such appeal to the Board of Directors within the time provided by law, the plaintiffs have no legal standing in this court (Chancery) to attack the provisions of said ordinance; and that the complaint should be dismissed."

Boyd Tackett of Texarkana filed the suit for Mrs. William Stevenson, Tilmon V. Wood, Earl H. Pool, J. T. May, Mrs. W. A. Pool, Luther Galloway, and Ray Honeycutt.

Bumpers 'disturbed' at Engineers work

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers said Wednesday night he was "deeply disturbed" that Army Engineers had begun work on the Cache River-Bayou DeView drainage project before settlement had been reached in the courts and without providing mitigation lands for wildlife in the basin.

Bumpers said he had approved the drainage project last year on the condition that Engineers buy and provide to the state 30,000 acres of "mitigation lands" — swamplands set aside for fish and wildlife to compensate for the loss of fish and wildlife habitat down the river valley resulting from the project.

Bumpers said that although he had made the reservation of 30,000 acres of mitigation land a condition of his approval of the drainage work, Congress still had not authorized funds for the mitigation lands.

"I am deeply disturbed that this project is going forward without the mitigation lands being made available and particularly because the litigation is still in progress," Bumpers said.

Earlier Wednesday Bumpers said he would make public his position on the project before the weekend.

The Memphis District of the Army Engineers began work last week on the drainage project even though a suit seeking to halt the project is pending before the 8th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Environmentalists are appealing U. S. District Court Judge J. Smith Henley's May 6 decision to dismiss their suit, which contends that the project will destroy valuable wildlife habitat and hardwood bottom land.

The project would dredge, clear and straighten 232 miles of the Cache, its upper tributaries and its main tributary, Bayou DeView.

Environmentalists have been hoping that Bumpers will take their side on the issue because all Engineer projects in the state must be approved by the governor.

Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus was the last governor to halt an Engineers' project when he vetoed construction of the Gilbert Dam on the Buffalo River.

Bumpers made his announcement during a ceremony in which he presented the state Game and Fish Commission with a $251,016 check as 50 per cent payment on 3,892 acres of bottom land in the commission's Black Swamp Wildlife Management Area on the Cache. The land recently was purchased by the commission.

Cuban prime minister calls for peace in VN

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro and a top Viet Cong representative have called on world public opinion to force an end to the Vietnam war.

When the United States stops the war, removes its troops and quits supporting the Saigon government, "the Vietnamese people will be disposed to free all prisoners of war," said Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, chief Viet Cong delegate to the Paris peace talks.

"The protests against the war shall grow within the United States," said Castro. "And the Vietnamese cause, in one way or another, will triumph — with Nixon or without Nixon."

He added that world support for Vietnam should not be underestimated.

Mrs. Binh was guest of honor at a massive outdoor rally in Havana on Wednesday night commemorating the 19th anniversary of a rebel attack on an army barracks that Communist leaders consider the start of their revolution in Cuba.

Castro followed Mrs. Binh on the rostrum in Havana's Plaza de la Revolucion and made a lengthy speech carried by Havana radio which was monitored in Miami.

News about landing concealed for days

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands for more than two weeks concealed the bad news about a landing north of Quang Tri City in which 29 of 31 American helicopters were reported hit by ground fire and 50 South Vietnamese marines were killed in one crash.

Officers in the field said the helicopters landed in the middle of a powerful North Vietnamese force that U.S. B52 strikes were supposed to knock out. But they said the B52s dropped their bombs half a mile off the target.

A South Vietnamese commander who was wounded in the operation July 11 said 29 of the 31 U.S. Marine Corps helicopters that brought the South Vietnamese battalion in were hit by ground fire. He said most of them were able to fly out of the battle area and presumably made it back to the 7th Fleet landing ships from which they came.

The U.S. Command reported on the day of the landing that one of the big CH53 helicopters was shot down, and later it said two of the American crewmen were missing and several were wounded. But not until today did the South Vietnamese command, in response to a query, admit that 50 South Vietnamese marines on board were killed.

A miscellaneous gift tea was given for Miss Ellen Turner, bride-elect of Gary Neaville, at the Heritage House Friday night, July 21.

Miss Turner wore a white clematis corsage on her beige silk and floral chalis dress. The couple's mothers, Mrs. McDowell Turner and Mrs. E. B. Neaville Jr. of North Little Rock, wore fleur d'amour corsages.

Among the 60 guests were Mrs. Jay Frank Holsted of North Little Rock and the bride-elect's grandmothers, Mrs. Walter L. Carter and Mrs. John C. Turner.

A silver epergne, which held an arrangement of large white and miniature yellow zinnias and yellow tapers, was used on the serving table. Punch, cookies, nuts, and mints were served.

Many useful gifts were displayed in the reception room where Mrs. Gary Thrasher presided at the bride's book.

THE GENERATION RAP

—by Helen and Sue Bottel

Broad Question
HELEN AND SUE:

This is the second time I've asked. Hope you'll now consider my question which is:

When in your estimations can parents do what would hurt their children most? —
HUNTER F.

DEAR HUNTER:
A broad question. Also a challenging one! That's what I put it aside for more thought.

Parents can do many things that might temporarily hurt their children—for none of us is perfect. But I believe the most damaging blight—one that could cause permanent harm—comes from the CONSTANT WITHHOLDING OF LOVE. —
HELEN

HUNTER:

Let's narrow that down a little: I think making a child feel worthless and unimportant—taking the steam out of his self-esteem—is the thing that could hurt him most. —
SUE

DEAR RAP:

My boyfriend says he is not ready to settle down and, besides, I'm a poor marriage risk. (We're both over 21.)

corsages were white carnations.

Yellow and white carnations and lemon leaves were used for the centerpiece and other table decorations.

The hostesses presented the honoree with a gift of silver.

We've been casually dating, and he insists we're just good friends, not "tied" to each other.

With all this perfectly clear, he still thinks sex is part of the deal, and calls me stupid for not agreeing with him. I just can't give him up, which must happen if I don't go along with his "no strings" liberated relationship.

He will not take me among his family or friends. He still thinks sex is part of the deal, and calls me stupid for not agreeing with him. I just can't give him up, which must happen if I don't go along with his "no strings" liberated relationship.

He will not take me among his family or friends. He says if I accidentally got pregnant, there are always places a girl can go to have her baby, or he'd "spring for an abortion, so what's the problem?"

I don't happen to think sex is immoral between two unmarried people who care for each other, but am I being immature (as he says) to expect it should be more than just a passing experience? —NOT VENTURESOME

DEAR NOT:

No way!!!
This guy sounds as if he wants a part-time sex partner to keep up his ego. It's plain, if he won't share you with his family or friends, that you'll never be more than just something to use and hide.

You "don't want to lose him"? You don't even have him!

Move on, before you really get hurt. —SUE

DEAR N.V.:

A man who wants all fun, no commitment, isn't "liberated," he's just plain selfish. Tell him a "poor marriage risk" is the type who picks up and leaves when things don't suit her. And prove it!

Double Duty

Cutting down on the time for your beauty ritual requires some extra planning. If you must sit under a hair dryer, then give yourself a manicure while you're waiting. If you blow-dry your hair, it's the perfect time for doing those waist bends or toe-touches. (Besides trimming the waistline, brushing your hair while you bend forward will help the circulation in your scalp.)

Pretty Smocks

Sweater smocks with embroidery on the borders look great over slacks or skirts. These pretty smocks are also perfect for the mother-to-be.

Communication gap in McGovern campaign

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — Questions about when, and how much, Sen. George McGovern knew about Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's medical history result, in part, from the latest in a series of communications gaps with his staff that have plagued the Democratic presidential nominee.

McGovern says he knew very little until Eagleton's dramatic disclosure here Tuesday.

Some aides knew of reports Eagleton had been hospitalized for exhaustion and one, Gordon Weil, was assigned to check this point before the Missouri senator was picked as McGovern's running mate.

Weil's phone check, press secretary Richard Dougherty said Wednesday, produced nothing of substance. McGovern was never told about it and that night when he asked Eagleton if there were any problems in his background, he got and accepted a negative answer.

Even after Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's top political adviser, contacted an Eagleton aide on the matter, McGovern never received enough detail to take the matter seriously.

This suggests that his staff has not always taken sufficient care in keeping him informed. And McGovern knows that ultimately any blame for staff mishaps will fall on him.

There were several communications lapses at the recent Democratic National Convention.

After McGovern met with relatives of U.S. prisoners of war, a statement was issued in his name that raised for the first time the possibility of maintaining U.S. troops in Thailand if an end to U.S. involvement failed to bring the prisoners home.

One top McGovern aide, Frederick G. Dutton, was astounded when shown the statement. The assistant who drafted it, John Holm, conceded it represented an elaboration of McGovern's position.

The next day, angry demonstrators filled the senator's hotel lobby to protest his statement. McGovern finally spoke to them and insisted his Southeast Asian policy hadn't changed.

As the convention opened, McGovern was quoted in an interview as saying he would accept the seating of Mayor Richard J. Daley's regular Illinois delegation—instead of a challenging group that included many McGovern supporters—once he won the crucial California challenge.

At the same time, floor managers were telling McGovern delegates to vote against Daley.

Earlier that evening, in the South Carolina credentials case, McGovern floor managers switched a number of votes against the proposal to add more women, seeking to avoid a result that could jeopardize his chances in the later California vote.

There have been other instances of conflicting statements or positions. On the morning after the convention, a curious drama occurred between McGovern and Lawrence F. O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. McGovern aides had already passed the word that Jean Westwood of Utah was his choice to succeed O'Brien, who had said he wanted to retire, while privately hoping to stay on.

McGovern sought to persuade O'Brien to remain. When the chairman said finally he'd reconsider, according to one source, McGovern then said he would have to reconsider too. And O'Brien stepped down.

A few days later, McGovern asked him to become national campaign chairman, a liaison job with party regulars in which O'Brien would have a voice in campaign strategy. At least two senior McGovern aides told reporters O'Brien's post was really just honorary.

This quickly appeared in print, and McGovern lectured his staff on the importance of keeping their mouths shut and working with party regulars.

Operation estimates of plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence analysts estimate it will take the North Vietnamese up to 18 months to get their biggest bombed-out power plant back in operation.

But the analysts also forecast that several other major power plants can be restored to half capacity in three to six months.

These projections are contained in an intelligence assessment of the effects of heavy U.S. air attacks on North Vietnam's electric-power-generating resources in May and June.

Principal targets were seven plants in the general Hanoi-Haiphong areas, which furnished more than two-thirds of North Vietnam's 230,000-kilowatt capacity.

Lt. Gen. George Eade, the Air Force deputy chief of staff for plans and operations, has said successful strikes on these plants "force the enemy to use inferior and substandard equipment, such as mobile generators, in an attempt to sustain his military and industrial capability."

Eade also noted that repair of bombed facilities absorbs manpower and scarce materials.

The biggest of North Vietnam's power sources was the Lang Chi hydroelectric plant, 55 miles northwest of Hanoi. Built with Russian help and inaugurated only last October, it was rated at 73,000 kilowatts before flights of Air Force F4 Phantom jets knocked it out with laser-guided bombs on June 10.

U.S. intelligence specialists said photos indicate that 12 to 18 months of repair and rebuilding will be necessary before the Lang Chi plant can again provide energy.

They said it would be another six to nine months until the Unong Bi thermal plant north-east of Haiphong could be running at 50 per cent of its 24,000-kilowatt capacity.

Uong Bi was the primary source of power for Haiphong port and naval repair facilities. The plant also served military control centers in the Hanoi area.

Another 24,000-kilowatt thermal plant, at Thai Nguyen north of Hanoi, may be restored to half capacity in three or four months, the analysts said. This plant has provided power for North Vietnam's only steel mill, where bridge sections, rails and barges have been manufactured.

Participants in experiments were 'in the dark'

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP) — A local doctor who took part in the early years of a federal syphilis study says he does not recall that the black participants were ever told they were subjects of an experiment or what the study involved.

"The people who came in were not told what was being done," Dr. J. W. Williams said in an interview Wednesday. "We told them we wanted to test them. They were not told, so far as I know, what they were being treated for or what they were not being treated for."

"We didn't tell them we were looking for syphilis," he said.

"I don't think they would have known what that was".

The experiment, called the Tuskegee Study, began in 1932. It was run by the U.S. Public Health Service and involved 600 black men from this area, 200 with no signs of syphilis and 400 who had the disease, according to the federal agency.

Current officials at the PHS Center for Disease Control in Atlanta have said their records show that none of the 400 syphilitics in the study ever received treatment for the disease.

At least seven men died as a direct result of syphilis and that figure could be higher, the officials said.

Dr. Williams, a Black physician, said he was an intern at the Local Tuskegee Institute Hospital when the study began and that he and two other interns, under the direction of two PHS doctors from Washington, worked on participants when they came in.

Dr. Williams said that the interns were never informed of the purposes or procedures of the study.

"I was just told who to give a needle to when the people came back," Williams said. "I thought I was administering an arsenical (the mercury-arsenic treatment used at the time to combat syphilis), but now I think some may have been a placebo (a dummy treatment that does no harm or good). I don't know for certain what it was."

Williams said patients were drawn to the experiment by promises of free medical treatment for their ailments. "These people thought they were being treated for rheumatism or bad stomachs," he said.

He said he could not condemn the Tuskegee Study as a whole because he left it in 1937, but he said he believed more information should have been given to the people who took part.

"All I know about the experiment at that point is that when a person in the program died his body was brought in for post-mortem work," he said.

The Department of Health Education and Welfare, parent agency of PHS, Tuesday began an investigation of the Tuskegee study following disclosure of its existence by The Associated Press.

Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary of HEW, said, "I especially want to determine why the study was permitted to continue past the time penicillin became the effective drug of choice against the disease."

Rockwell Corp. gets contract for 'shuttle'

WASHINGTON (AP) — North American Rockwell Corp. has captured the $2.6-billion contract to build the Space Shuttle orbiter vehicle that will jet into orbit like a rocket and land on earth like an airplane.

North American's Space Division, at Downey, Calif., won over three rival bidders Wednesday to get the National Aeronautics and Space Administration contract to build five vehicles over a six-year period.

The delta-winged craft that will carry men and material between earth and orbiting satellites are expected to be a boon to the aerospace industry in California. Estimates range up to 60,000 more jobs over the next 10 years.

Under the initial payment of $530 million over two years, North American will build the first two orbiters—one to be used for static testing and the other for horizontal test flights starting in 1976.

Three operational vehicles are to be built for manned orbital missions, with test flights beginning in 1978.

The 120-foot-long craft with a 79-foot wing span are to be in full operation by 1980. They are to be used over and over again to carry men, satellites and equipment into earth orbit and to bring personnel and mate-

Tax rush object of legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee is trying to stop a Supreme Court-approved tax rush to the airports before it becomes a stampede by revenue-hungry state and local officials.

Legislation imposing an 18-month moratorium on all state and local taxes on air passengers making interstate or foreign flights, and calling for a Civil Aeronautics Board investigation, was approved by the House Commerce Committee Wednesday.

This approach was taken by the committee in lieu of a tougher bill which would have outlawed state and local taxes on airplane passengers. The committee deleted a section that would have allowed continuation of any levy imposed before June 1.

In April, the Supreme Court upheld use and service charges imposed at airports in Evansville, Ind., and in New Hampshire. That prompted other cities to enact similar measures or to study proposals to use airports as new sources of revenue.

At congressional hearings, airline representatives protested that passengers "will increasingly become targets for undue and discriminatory taxes since the Supreme Court's decision has apparently opened a Pandora's box."

But a spokesman for state aviation officials said backers of the proposed ban on state and local taxes "have shed enough crocodile tears over the imagined difficulties involved in collecting these fees ... to float an offshore airport."

By a moratorium, said Whitney Gilliland of the CAB, Congress could prevent "the almost certain mushrooming of a new kind of tax, that would be extremely difficult to get rid of once the various states and localities adopted it and became dependent upon it."

The ban on such taxes would become effective upon enactment of the bill, which was sent to the House for action.

The legislation calls for the CAB to investigate the passenger-tax issue and to report to the president and Congress within a year.

Opening lead—♦ 2

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Here is a very unusual hand taken from the Bridge Philosopher.

We have a strong feeling that Jim Kauder made this one up. There is East with one jack finding a chance to collect two tricks against three no-trump, but using his deuce of hearts to refuse both of them.

We hold no brief for West's diamond opening except to point out that if he leads his jack of clubs South will romp home with his contract.

Anyway, West does lead the deuce of diamonds. Dummy wins. The ace of spades is cashed and a club to South's queen loses to West's ace. A second diamond is led. The king of clubs is cashed and South has to abandon that suit.

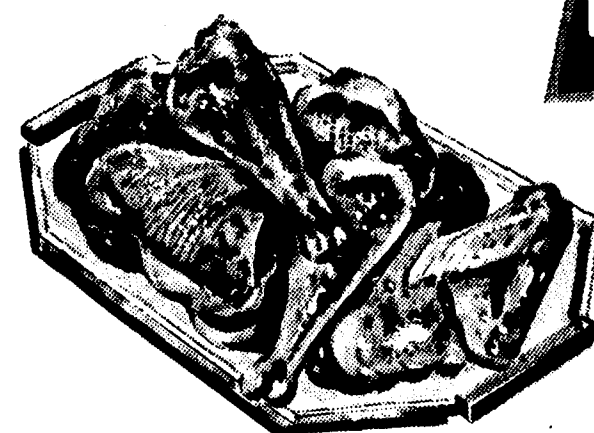

He plays out his ace-king-queen and three of hearts.

If East wins that heart trick he can cash two heart tricks, but must give South the rest of the tricks in spades. If East has hung onto his deuce of hearts he lets the three-spot hold. The spade suit is shut out and West sets the hand by taking the last four tricks.

A—Bid three diamonds. This bid won't get you into real trouble, provided your partner does not overcall on cheese, and may give your partner the winning lead against an enemy contract.

Rolling Stones wind up trip

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rolling Stones ended their two-month tour of North America in Madison Square Garden with a whipped cream orgy to celebrate Mick Jagger's 29th birthday.

Banana cream pies were hurled playfully about the stage by and at the musicians Wednesday night, and 20,000 hopping, swaying fans joined in a downright sentimental rendition of "Happy Birthday."

Jagger, once the personification of youthful rebellion, has carefully controlled his frenetic act. The Stones have dropped from their program the provocative "Sympathy for the Devil," and fences kept overeager fans from the stage.

And Jagger once again displayed the secret of his and the Stones' success: high energy.

When the band launched into "Jumpin' Jack Flash," it was a began in Vancouver June 3, the Stones produced their usual overpowering blast of infectious sound.

And Jagger once again displayed the secret of his and the Stones' success: high energy.

When the band launched into "Jumpin' Jack Flash," it was a if someone had pushed a button. The fans rose to their feet from the floor to the top row in waves, like pop-up targets.

When they were last in the United States 2½ years ago, the Stones were deep in Jagger's devil imagery. That tour ended in violence at Altamont, Calif., when a man with a gun was stabbed to death after an altercation with members of the Hell's Angels.

That seemed to give pause to the English group which followed the Beatles up the heights in the early 1960s. In 1972, they had a few problems, police clashing with would-be gate-

Flat tire blamed for death of boy

WENDOVER, Utah (AP) — A futile and agonizing 100-mile ride across the scorching desert to save the life of little Jimmy Carlos was made in vain, possibly because of a flat tire.

Jimmy, 14, had just finished taking a shower and came out of the bathroom at his home gasping for breath.

When Deputy Sheriff Marion Carter and state Highway Patrolman Scott Sparks arrived at the home, they revived Jimmy but determined that he needed hospital care.

Two weeks earlier, Jimmy swallowed an accidental overdose of family prescription and was flown to a Salt Lake City hospital where doctors revived him.

Tuesday, however, Wendover's only ambulance driver was out of town, so the officers, with the boy's mother, put the gasping Jimmy in Carter's oxygen-equipped cruiser for the ride across the Great Salt Lake Desert to a hospital in Tooele, 100 miles away.

Four miles out of Wendover, a tire blew.

Carter called for help on his radio as the precious oxygen ran out.

Jimmy struggled for life. His mother was frantic watching him thrash about the cruiser's rear seat.

The car's spare tire had been used three days earlier after another tire blew out on the hot desert pavement.

Meanwhile, Sparks ran to a nearby potash plant for a bottle of industrial oxygen. He made the trip three times in temperatures believed more than 100 degrees.

Stories on Green Beret raid are different

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A sheriff says that Green Berets who staged a mock take-over of Alabaster, Ala., as part of their war games set themselves up as subversives so he treated them as such.

Meanwhile, the 20th Special Forces Group, headquartered here, issued a statement Wednesday denying that a staged kidnapping—to demonstrate to National Guardsmen from Alabama, Florida and Louisiana how the Viet Cong overtake small villages—came as a surprise to Alabaster Mayor W. L. Mathis, City Judge H. L. Hollis and C. E. Carter, the chief of police.

Alabaster, 20 miles south of here, has a population of 4,000.

The news release said the officials "were thoroughly briefed on the operation" and "the only facet about the operation unknown to the mayor and other city officials was the exact hour the activity was to take place."

That conflicts with Mathis' story. He said he was told a recruit would be sent to learn the duties of the mayor and the recruit would be kidnapped.

Instead, six beret-wearing, rifle-toting, pistol-packing Guardsmen overtook the mayor and police chief as they were tacking up the mayor's re-election posters.
